Welcome to The Fat Crab Restaurant at the Redbrick Hotel

The hotel was first built in 1890 for Thomas Burke, Burke remained the owner and proprietor of the hotel until 1899 before selling it.

The hotel retains a fair amount of its original architecture, substantially intact for a nineteenth century hotel. Burke’s Hotel was later known as the Redbrick, not because of the hotel’s exterior, but the red 10 pound notes – known as ‘bricks’ – that were used by the bookies when settling bets in the public bar.
